NOT CURED YET.—A Nashville correspondent, who recently had a conversation with an influential citizen of Tennessee, writes as follows:

I asked him if he felt willing to tell me frankly what he thought of the future of slavery in Tennessee.

"Certainly," he replied. "I have no concealment to make upon that or any other public question."

"Do you believe there is any possible prospect of its restoration in this State?" I inquired.

"That," said he, "is still an open question. I consider it no more settled that we shall not have slavery in Tennessee than it is whether the institution shall be abolished in Kentucky."

"Is there any considerable number of the people who would favor such restoration?"

"A large majority would, if all were allowed to express themselves."

"Would you?"

"Unquestionably I would."

"But as your amended Constitution forever prohibits it, why is not the question settled?"

"Why," said he, "even a legal Constitution is not a finality; and of course you are aware that many of us regard the Marsh amendments to the Constitution of Tennessee as utterly illegal and void. Were it not for the presence of military force the matter would have been brought ere this before the Courts, and I doubt not their decision would have confirmed our opinion."

"But," said I, "if the Courts should decide as you say, would it not be impossible to restore the institution on account of the resistance which the blacks would every where make to it?"

"Of course," he replied, "we could not reinstate our authority immediately over the whole of them—perhaps not over one-half of them. But there are many sections of the State where the blacks are not aware that slavery has been abolished at all. Some of those sections are in West Tennessee, where the colored population are most numerous. In other quarters there are many families which the blacks have never attempted to leave, and where the quiet resumption of the master's authority would be at once acquiesced in. Gradually all resistance would cease, and the colored people, in many places disgusted with their new found freedom as different from what they had anticipated, would voluntarily return to bondage, or accept as destiny what they could easily be persuaded was unavoidable. What it required a great army to destroy can easily be restored by the people when that army is removed."

THE DIVINE RIGHT OF SLAVERY.—General Rousseau has given an admirable practical reply to the arguments in favor of slavery as a divine institution. The State Rights Democrat, the Review, Arena and other journals, whose sole political object it is to restore the barbarous institution, will do well to consider these remarks. The General says:

"Some of my clerical friends may take an objection to my theology, insisting that the Bible sanctions slavery. Now, gentlemen, I must confess that I am much better versed in 'Casey's Tactics,' the Army Regulations, or even in Blackstone or Chitty, though I got rather rusty in the law, than in the good book, but this much I know of the Bible: When the Old and the New Testament were delivered to man chattel slavery existed among all mankind, and every word on the subject of slavery which these books contain goes toward mitigating and lessening the power of the master, and giving some comfort to the slave. And this, too, I know: That wherever Christianity is the ruling religion, slavery has gone down, down, down. And wherever people do not believe in the Bible but in the Turkish Koran, or in some heathenish superstition, there slavery is still as strong, and universal and deeply fixed, as it was two thousand years ago. Now all your hypocritical rebel parsons, with their texts about Paul and Onesimus, can't get over this little proposition: That Christianity has steadily driven out slavery, and that the Turks still keep it up; and I want to know if the Turks and the Tartars are really better Christians than the French and the English, the Germans and the Americans. Mr. Mallory belongs to a bygone age, somewhat like mastodons, and Siberian elephants, and other antediluvian animals. His opposition to the Constitutional Amendment will no more stop its ultimate adoption than his baying at the moon can keep that heavenly luminary from shedding its mild rays over the wise alike and the fool. He cannot stop the wheel of progress, which sweeps away old-fashioned ploughs and keel-boats, old fashioned spelling and old fashioned music, old-fashioned monarchies and old-fashioned slavery, which rolls forward locomotives where once stood ox-carts, and draws the electric wires across the ocean."

GOVERNOR ANDREW AS A MAN AND A PATRIOT.—We find the following in the Boston Transcript:

Military [illegible] recently prevented two young lovers from joining hands in marriage. The soldier was four times prevented from getting his leave of absence. The War Department did not find it convenient with its duty to permit the lady and her brother to go to the distant front to have the rite duly solemnized, so that the wife might share the lot of the husband.

At last an appeal was made to the heart of His Excellency, the Governor of this Commonwealth, and with the success which attends such an appeal when official obligation allows the indulgence of his kindly sensibilities and gentle sympathies. The letter of his fair correspondent moved the Executive and the man, and he at once forwarded it to Washington, with the following endorsement, which succeeded in smoothing the course of true love and uniting Mars to tenderness. This is not the first or only instance in which the Governor has brought about other unions, in the midst of his endeavors to preserve the Union of the States:

"To the Hon. E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War.—This case appeals to all our sympathies as patriots and as gentlemen, and I appeal to the chivalry of the Department of War which presided over more heroes than Homer ever dreamed of, and better and braver than his muse ever sung—I pray you to grant this request of my fair correspondent, and generations will rise up and call us blessed. J. A. A."

THE ARMY.—The New York Herald's Washington special of a late date, has the following:

We have ascertained from official sources that on the 1st day of last May there was 1,050,000 enrolled in the army on the pay rolls. Since that time there have been discharged a little over 700,000, leaving in round numbers about 350,000 still in the army and on the pay rolls. Of the number discharged about 300,000 are now en route for their several rendezvous to be paid off and mustered out. The funds sufficient to meet this demand are in the hands of paymasters and are being paid out as fast as possible. The others, who have been discharged, over 400,000 have been fully paid off and mustered out. The rapidity with which this part of the work is performed, may be inferred from the fact that official figures in the Department at Washington show there have been paid off and mustered out during the last thirty days 300,000. The recent order of the War Department will probably muster out about half of Sherman's troops, and Paymaster Wilson starts to-morrow with nearly five million dollars to pay them off.

ANOTHER REBEL IN FAVOR OF NEGRO SUFFRAGE.—Ex-Governor Westcott, now a refugee at Montreal, favors the extension of the suffrage to the freedmen of the South. They are made free, he says; universal freedom has been proclaimed, and it is now a stultification to deny them the right to vote. He does not believe they will vote with their former masters, but they will give the South a larger basis of representation and raise her in importance in the nation. He is peculiarly bitter on the Democratic party. They are cowards and traitors too, he says, and he will never again in his life, if he votes at all, vote for a Democrat. He will vote for none but Republicans. There is no issue now, he argues, between the South and the Republicans. Slavery is gone—secession is forever dead. The South should now unite in keeping the Republican party in power and in preventing the restoration of Democratic ascendancy.

THE TRIBUNE AND HORACE GREELEY.—Articles are going the round of the newspaper press to the effect that Horace Greeley has ceased to have any control of the Tribune, and some accounts go so far as to state that he has no connection with that journal. There is not a word of truth in these reports. Greeley is not only the editor in chief still, but he does not write less than two columns for every issue of the paper, unless he happens to be out of town. At the last meeting of the stockholders of the Tribune his salary, to whose advance he has always been opposed, was raised from $5,000 to $7,500 per annum, in spite of his protestations against it.—New York Correspondence Cincinnati Gazette.

[illegible] OF THE STATE

THURSDAY MORNING SEPT. 1[illegible]

East of the Mountains.

Few p[illegible] has led through the eastern portion [illegible] any correct idea [illegible] and [illegible] State [illegible] have acquired only vague and [illegible] the eastern part of the State is destined to [illegible] assume in all the various relations of social [illegible] very desirable that that portion of the State be better understood, not only as to what it possesses, but also as to what it wants. Of course it is impossible to convey the information [illegible] but we may be able in a few words to give such an outline as will [illegible] operations [illegible] who desire to become acquainted with that region.

First in [illegible] importance we rank the mining interests. Placer mining has been extensively carried on at various points east of the Cascade Mountains [illegible] the year 1858. But until the following [illegible] in Washington and Idaho Territories were of such an exciting character that little notice was taken of those in Oregon. In 186[illegible] the mines on the upper waters of the John Day river began to attract attention, and from that time forward development succeeded discovery till the establishment of one mining camp after another proved Oregon as rich in placer mines as any other section of the Pacific slope. The nearest mining district to the old settlements is that of Rock Creek. It is about one hundred and forty miles from the Dalles in a south easterly direction. This camp has never been prospected. Hitherto the want of water has prevented any extensive work there. This summer a ditch has been brought in from the mountains south of the camp and work will commence in earnest before winter sets in. The mines at this point, though not very extensive, prospect quite well.

Canyon City District is about 60 miles east of Rock Creek. For three years past this has been known as one of the best camps on the coast, and it is by no means exhausted yet. It is both extensive and rich. The climate is comparatively mild, and the miner can work his claim almost the entire year. Last winter however, being unusually severe little work was done for three or four months. This camp will pay for several years to come.

Twenty five miles north of Canyon City is the Elk Creek, or middle Fork mines. These diggings have only been discovered a few months but sufficient is already known about them to warrant us in stating that they are quite good. Their extent is not fully known. The camp however, is quite large. Several thousand persons are already there, and others are going daily. The gold from this camp, like that from Canyon City, is of fine quality.

Dixie District is a camp of which little has been said. It is situated about twenty miles east of Canyon City, on Dixie creek, a tributary of the John Day, and is one of the best small camps in the upper country.

Vincent's District is north-east of Dixie, about 15 miles. It is a rich camp, but not extensive—at least not known to be so.

Olive Creek is 12 miles north of Vincent's, and is one of the most productive districts in the State. The gold from Olive is not of as fine quality as that from the other camps mentioned above being worth about $16 per ounce. This camp with its numerous adjuncts and outposts is one of considerable extent.

Granite Creek District is about fourteen miles north-east of Olive creek. This has been one of the best paying camps in the country, and promises to return handsomely for an indefinite length of time. The gold of this district is not fine, being largely alloyed with silver. Its market value in Portland is about $14 per ounce.

Diggings have been discovered on the North Fork of John Day river, and on the head waters of the Grande Ronde river, the former twelve miles and the latter about twenty two miles north of Granite creek, but as yet no very encouraging reports come from those points. Prospecting here has however been but very imperfectly done.

To the east of Granite, in the Burnt river country, are Eagle Creek and Clark's Creek mines. These camps have yielded considerable quantities of the precious metals, but cannot be said to be very important places in comparison with some of the others.

The locality known as Powder river District, is situated to the south-east of Granite creek. Auburn, the principal point in this district, is about eighty miles a little south of east from Canyon City. It has been one of the most productive placer mining camps in the State and is not yet exhausted.

These are the principal mining districts of Oregon, but new discoveries are frequent, and there is good ground to believe that gold abounds in many places not yet prospected.

Gold bearing quartz is found in regularly defined ledges in the neighborhoods of Canyon City, Elk creek, Vincent's, Olive creek, Granite creek, Eagle creek and Auburn, some of which prospect very flatteringly. But there has been no systematic quartz mining done except in one or two places, and only on a small scale in those.

Silver lodes are found in the Granite, Olive and Burnt river Districts. Those in the Granite and Olive creek Districts are especially rich.

But this article is already too long. We shall refer to other features of Eastern Oregon hereafter.

Freight from Chico to Idaho.—The Idaho World of a late date mentions the arrival at Idaho City of six heavy wagons loaded with freight from Chico. They performed the outward trip in about ninety days. The price paid was twelve and a half cents per pound from Chico through. The World says it is expected that the journey will be made hereafter in considerably less time. It certainly must be made, both in a much shorter time and for much less money, if that route is to contend successfully with this. The [illegible] for the inland California route are very profuse in their predictions about what will be done next year in the way of hauling freight to Idaho. [illegible] thing, however is certain. The distance next year will be [illegible] as great as it has been this.

General Butler. A late Washington dispatch says that the object of Gen. Butler's recent visit to that city was to secure the pardon of Mrs. Slocum and other ladies of New Orleans. The pardons were obtained. This would seem singular conduct on the part of General Butler, were we to regard as true the infamous charges which the Copperheads are continually making against him. The truth is he was [illegible] in his dealings except with the [illegible] traitors and his conduct in this regard, and that alone causes the Copperheads to [illegible] him.

Ford's Theater. It has at last been decided what use shall be made of Ford's Theatre in future. The building will be made a depository for [illegible] archives and relics. On the 2[illegible] August the place was stripped of all its theatrical furniture and [illegible] preparatory to adapting it to the use to which it has been assigned. [illegible] it seems that the Government has finally purchased the building.

Boise and Owyhee

[illegible] CORRESPONDENT

Boise City, Sept. [illegible] 186[illegible]

There is a [illegible] in different parts of Idaho to undervalue other parts. As yet the Boise Basin has not developed sufficient quartz interests to enter the lists and compete with South Boise and Owyhee, but those two districts entertain a bit of jealousy of each other which is amusing to behold and perfectly harmless as each of those regions is at present being developed with great vigor. The same number of mills are working at [illegible] and [illegible] the same number are in contemplation at each. South Boise and Owyhee [illegible] are filled with [illegible] have at least ten mills [illegible] next Spring, but I am inclined to credit Owyhee in advance with the greatest amount of bullion and I [illegible] ledges are the most valuable, for [illegible] the exception of the Atlanta Lodge in [illegible] mining district I have seen nothing [illegible] the course of my extended tour [illegible] as well as the mines upon [illegible] Creek. [illegible] I think while the ledges at Rocky Bar are undeniably rich [illegible] that any of their mills will have as good [illegible] to show as the [illegible] or Morning Star. By these [illegible] I am not attempting in any manner to disparage the mines of South Boise of which I have formed a most favorable opinion, but Owyhee is almost fabulously rich, and such ledges as the [illegible] "Morning Star," "[illegible]," "Home Ticket," and "Whisky," claim a precedence for it over any mining region now known.

The richest ledges at Rocky Bar vary but little in size from the ledges of Owyhee; in other camps a foot would be considered a good width for a valuable lode, though in each, occasionally, they are found much wider. The work going on in all of Idaho is almost sure to develope it to a point that will render it one of the richest parts of the Union.

THE TRAIL TO IDAHO CITY.

A very agreeable party numbering some eight or ten started together for the Basin a few days since, and although the road was rough we made the journey a pleasant one, and smoothed its rough points with laugh and jest, while the occasional application of [illegible] rye," which some of the party had prudently brought along, was calculated to and did make things go easier than they otherwise would. There were some jolly fellows along that could appreciate mountain life and "mountain dew" as well, and it had a most astonishing effect on the mules and horses to have the lubricating process employed upon their masters. I would attempt to describe the road if it were easily done, but it is not. At times we climbed ridges, at times we wound along steep hill sides, to look down which made one shudder as the pony unconcernedly went along the narrow and new made trail at a rapid jog as if not seeming to appreciate that a misstep would upset any amount of calculation. We crossed Roaring River which is famous for trouting, but we had no time to try it. We passed the Middle Boise where we went down hill more than I can make any body believe, who has not traveled that trail and went down in the night too, for there was to be found a most excellent stopping place at Goodrich's Ranch, where we supped and breakfasted in rather better than usual mountain style. The next day we crossed the North Boise, climbed the ridge that hems in the Basin, and were soon in Idaho City. Really the mountain road from Rocky Bar to Idaho City is a wonderful trip to make, and one's ideas of mountains are satisfied to the full as the journey progresses.

QUARTZ MINES IN THE BASIN.

I sometime since made favorable mention of the Illinois Lodge, about five miles from Idaho City and near the Gambrinus. Since my first visit to that mine, which is owned by Messrs. Combs & Co., the work of developing the mine has favorably prospered. The mine will average ten or twelve feet wide everywhere, and the Gambrinus Mills, owned by Combs & Co., has been brought down and rebuilt upon the Illinois Ledge after which it is now named. It has been working well for some weeks with an average result of forty eight dollars per ton, as one of the company informs me, a result that will render this company millionaires in a few years if continued. The same company have a large mill to erect when once decided upon the question of location. The [illegible] Mill near by has been running with indifferent success. Col. Raymond has a mill on the Allen Ledge, near Centreville, that does a fair business, and I am told that the mills of Humason & Co., up Grimes Creek above Hog'em are doing an excellent business. Many rich ledges appear to exist in the Basin though there is often a preponderance of base metals in the ore. Idaho in all respects as to quartz is in its infancy. Time must be taken to develop what it can yield.

THE VIGILANTES.

Times are much as usual at the basin, save that considerable excitement exists thereabouts as to the intentions of the Vigilance Committee which is said to have organized in the basin by the enrollment of near 1,000 men, and sometimes make open show of force without exercising it. I could learn nothing definite of the intentions and acts of the Vigilantes. They are accused of intending to storm the jail and take Patterson and hang him and his friends say they have already attempted it and were afraid to proceed. I consider it a very unhappy state of affairs, while I have no excuse for [illegible] who consider themselves good citizens and lend countenance to violence. I do not know that any [illegible] Law is in force in Idaho and if the practical effect of political supremacy is to shield a criminal like Patterson, as I am inclined to think it is still there is no redress [illegible] won by violence. I hardly think the sober second thoughts of people there will countenance it, and I anticipate that all will soon be quiet in the basin.

As a general thing times are called dull there abouts and it is a settled thing that the year 186[illegible] will prove to be until it closes, a year of discouragements unsurpassed as it has been by snows at [illegible] floods and fires which last may occur again.

Letter from Auburn

Auburn, Aug. 30th 186[illegible]

Editor Oregonian:

Times here the present summer have been somewhat dull owing to the fact that but few men have been at work in the mines since the free water failed last spring, and since the experience of last summer the claim owners have determined that the diggings are not sufficiently rich to justify the present price of water. It is said, however that there is a prospect [illegible] reduction in the price of water after this season at [illegible] with water at twelve and a half and fifteen cents per inch there is quite an amount of ground here that would pay fair wages.

Our fellow townsman, E. M. White, Esq., bought quite an amount of mining ground on Blue Canyon Gulch last winter but [illegible] some mistake in surveying his flume, he failed to strike bed rock, and suspended operations for this year, but will lower his flume next spring and it is thought open a large tract of paying ground which will add much to the prosperity of our town. There was a quartz discovery made near Pocahontas last May. I believe that it is said by those posted on [illegible] to be a rich thing [illegible] of the [illegible] have disposed of [illegible] feet already to the amount of some thousands of dollars and as it is within five miles of Messrs. Rinkel & Co's mill it can be tested with but little outlay.

CROPS.

Are looking well in Powder Valley. Wheat, oats and barley will doubtless succeed as well here as in Grand Ronde valley, although about two weeks later and as we are soon to have a large flouring mill at Baker City, the farmers will no doubt realize a fair price for their grain. Garden vegetables generally do well here though not as well as in Powder and Grande Ronde valleys, with perhaps the exception of onions and potatoes.

THE INDIANS.

Have not been around collecting taxes for a month or more, owing I doubt not to the fact that the Oregon volunteers have been industriously [illegible] the country making Mr. Snake anxious "for a treaty."

AN INCIDENT.

Some two weeks since four Snake Indians came suddenly upon a couple of white men who were prospecting on Burnt river and as our white friends had nothing at hand but pick and shovel they were determined to act only on the defensive and the Indians, probably from seeing no hostile exhibition of fear though armed with both rifles and revolvers, made no hostile demonstration but appeared desirous to trade. One of the white men conversed for a considerable time in Chinook with one of the Indians that [illegible] of that language but failed to ascertain their destination or where they were camped. They all rode good horses, were well armed and treated the white men a [illegible] and with the exception of begging for tobacco appeared independent as princes.

From this circumstance it is generally thought here that the advent of [illegible] into their country has intimidated them so that they are ready to treat but I do hope that the authorities will conclude no treaty with them that does not compel them to surrender the stock they have stolen. More anon.

A private telegram received this evening quoting [illegible] the 8th at 144¾.

Sailed—Sept. 12th bark Antioch, Puget Sound.

Strike Among the Bachelors. It is almost an every day affair to record "strikes" among mechanics, laborers, etc. But the newest thing in this line comes to us from France, which seems to have consecrated all her energies to the purpose of finding and fully improving the un[illegible] assertion that "there is nothing new under the sun," hence the new bonnets, new ideas, and so on, with which she is continually astonishing us. The new idea referred to—and, by the way, a very sensible one, for her—is the "strike" among the bachelors of Marseilles, who, to the number of four thousand between the ages of twenty and thirty, have held a meeting and entered into an agreement not to ask any young woman in marriage until a complete change shall take place in the manner of living, and particularly in the dress of the fair sex. The young men insist on "greater simplicity in every respect, and a return to the more modest habits of a century or two ago."

In 1656 a trial took place in Connecticut under the section of the Blue Laws prohibiting kissing. The offenders were Sarah Tuttle and Jacob Newton. It appeared that Sarah dropped her gloves and Jacob found them. When Sarah asked for them Jacob demanded a kiss for his pay, and as the demand did not seem extravagant, she adjusted it forthwith. The facts were clearly proved and the parties were each fined twenty shillings.

The Death of M. H. Adams

The following communication has been handed us for publication. The newspapers of Illinois are requested to copy in order that the relatives of the deceased may be apprised of Mr. Adams' death.

PORTLAND, Sept. 1 ... 186...

... As a personal friend of Moses H. Adams, Esq., who was killed in the ... stage disaster ... I ... has relatives in ... place ... and ... I ... his relatives and friends ...

Mr. Adams was born in ... his parents removed thence to Illinois when he was but a child. His relatives I think still reside in that State. He came to California at an early day. He resided in Yreka and the country adjacent till about 1861, when he came to Oregon. Since 1862 he has been in the mines in the eastern part of this State. At the time of his death he was Treasurer of Grant county. His law studies during the last year were prosecuted ... at Canyon City, and he was admitted to practice ... 7th inst. He was an active member of the M. E. Church and of the Order of Odd Fellows. The deceased leaves some property at Canyon City. As a business man, a citizen and a christian gentleman, he was highly esteemed by all who knew him, most highly by those who knew him best.

Yours truly, W. LAIR HILL.

SHOOTING AFFRAY AT IDAHO CITY. —We clip the following from the Idaho World of Sept. 2d:

Our city was again thrown into quite an excitement on Monday evening, about 8 o'clock, by the shooting of ... Billings by ... Lusk. The facts are about these, as near as we can learn: The parties have been working and ... this summer, trailing the ... until Billings was arrested for assisting Patterson to escape at the time of the killing of Pinkham, but was discharged after having been examined by the grand jury. About a week before the shooting, Billings went to the cabin formerly occupied by them, to get his blankets, when Lusk, for some cause or other, seemed inclined to raise a fuss with him. Billings told him there was excitement enough in town now, that he did not wish to quarrel with him, but that if he (Lusk) had anything against him he would see him some other time. On Monday evening as Billings was going from the foot of Main street across Moore's Creek, and when near the Belknap saw mill he met Lusk carrying a double barrelled shot gun, and was accosted with the words, "Hello Billings, is that you?" He answered "yes," and passed on, but thinking he was going to a vigilance committee meeting, he looked back and saw Lusk drawing on him. He turned half around, putting his hand on his pistol, when he received a charge of buck shot through the small of the back or spine, lacerating his finger, cutting his belt entirely away, and inflicting a frightful and dangerous if not a fatal wound. He then discharged the other barrel at Billings' head and then fled. Lusk was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Gorman on Tuesday morning and had an examination on Wednesday before the Justice of the Peace, and was held in $2,000 bonds to answer to the District Court now in session.

THE RETURNED MARYLAND REBELS. —It appears that the returned rebels of Maryland, like those of Missouri and Tennessee, are to be held under political disabilities. An Eastern paper says:

The registers of votes in Maryland have held a Convention in Baltimore, and resolved to enrol no man as a voter who had the general reputation of having sympathised with the rebellion. This will exclude from the polls about half of those who have hitherto exercised the elective franchise in that State. Maryland stands with Tennessee and Missouri in her resolution that the traitors who have been engaged in destroying the Government shall for some time to come have no share in its administration. It is not a bad rule for those States which have known the atrocity of the rebellion by experience, and we are glad to know that the officers of the law in Maryland are resolved to do their duty in accordance with the Constitution of the State.

THE LOYAL OATH IN MISSOURI. —The requirement of the new constitution in Missouri that all officers, trustees, clergymen, etc., must take an oath of loyalty or surrender their positions at the end of 60 days from Aug. 1st, causes much excitement and discussion. The clergymen are particularly troubled, for several of them supported the rebellion. They have called a convention of preachers, deacons, elders and other religious teachers of Missouri, to be held in St. Louis on the 25th of August, to consult in regard to their duty in connection with the oath.

THE GEM OF THE TOILET, the world says, is SOZODONT. It renders the teeth pearly white, gives to the breath a fragrant odor, extinguishing the ill humors which usually flow from a bad and neglected set of teeth. SOZODONT is so convenient, and produces a sensation at once so delightful, that makes it a pleasure to use it.

Brandreth's Pills—Their Qualities. In small and repeated doses the effect of Brandreth's Vegetable Universal Pills is to increase the activity of the secreting and excreting organs. The slime discharged becomes more liquid and contains a larger proportion of bile. The operation of this extraordinary medicine does not stop here; the membranes of the lungs, of the eyes, and all the membranes become moister, the skin becomes damper and at the same time warmer where too cool, and cooler if too warm. So that Brandreth's Pills seem to vitalize and promote secretions generally. In large doses, say from five to ten Pills, they act as a powerful purgative, clearing the bowels first of their contents and then acting upon the internal organs, cleansing them of slime, mucus, or any concretions not required for their healthy action. Thus the action of Brandreth's Pills is what is required to bring about that state in all the organs which results in their full restoration to health. The blood vessels, as well as the blood, are thus restored to perfect purity and vigor.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

—OF—

WILD CHERRY!

HAS BEEN USED FOR NEARLY

HALF A CENTURY,

WITH THE MOST ASTONISHING SUCCESS IN CURING

Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Croup, Liver Complaint, Bronchitis, Difficulty of Breathing, Asthma, and every affection of the

THROAT, LUNGS, AND CHEST,

INCLUDING EVEN

CONSUMPTION.

There is scarcely one individual in the community who wholly escapes, during a season, from some one, however slightly developed, of the above symptoms—a neglect of which might lead to the last named, and most to be dreaded disease in the whole catalogue. The power of "medicinal gum" of the Wild Cherry Tree over this class of complaints is well known; so great is the good it has performed, and so great the popularity it has acquired.

In this preparation, besides the virtues of the Cherry, there are commingled with it other ingredients of like value, thus increasing its value ten fold, and forming a Remedy whose power to soothe, to heal, to relieve, and to cure disease, exists in no other medicine yet discovered.

The unequalled success that has attended the application of this medicine in all cases of

has induced many physicians of high standing to employ it in their practice, some of whom advise us of the fact under their own signatures. We have space only for the names of a few of these:—

- S. H. FINLEY, M. D., San Francisco, Cal.
- E. BOYDEN, M. D., Exeter, Me.
- ALEXANDER HATCH, M. D., China, Me.

The proprietors have letters from all classes of our fellow citizens, from the halls of Congress to the humblest cottage, and even from beyond the seas; for the fame and virtue of WISTAR'S BALSAM have extended to the uttermost bounds of the earth, without any attempt on our part to introduce it beyond the limits of our own country.

Scenery of the Columbia River

A [illegible] correspondent of the San Francisco Bulletin, writing from this city, gives the following [illegible] description of the Columbia river and [illegible] scenery. The narrative begins at Astoria:

With [illegible] [illegible] used to me, I set [illegible] [illegible] Astoria to peer into the [illegible] present and the future of the place. [illegible] [illegible] American citizens who [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] in its cradle, upholding [illegible] steps in infancy. [illegible] the site of the old Fort, and at [illegible] gaze upon that majestic [illegible] Capt. Gray of the good ship [illegible] [illegible] the first time, and the first [illegible] on the morning of the 11th of May [illegible]. Happy Capt. Gray!—happy and proud [illegible] for the first time on a [illegible] like this, and feel that to himself the world was indebted for its discovery, without a strong emotion both of joy and pride. Withal we think he was glad when he was at sea again, safe over these terrible breakers.

We sat here in the sun [illegible] and fancy the [illegible] son, nineteen years afterward, sounding out the [illegible] in small boats, and [illegible] sight of [illegible]. Then we see [illegible] this very bluff, sending [illegible] of the [illegible] Fur Company with [illegible] the North [illegible]. Doubtless [illegible] with Indian canoes [illegible] to know [illegible] from the white [illegible]. [illegible] canoe is in sight. The white [illegible] like the sun to snow [illegible] the red men disappear, dissipated by civilization. Later than the Astor expedition [illegible] the canoes of Indian warriors darkened these waters, as late as '49, when gold hunters by the hundreds were camped on this [illegible], waiting for some vessels loaded with lumber [illegible] the river and give them passage [illegible] California. Here was camped a company of U. S. Artillerymen, the first instalment of [illegible] military force in the Territory, and here [illegible] camps of gold seekers, waiting [illegible] weeks in waiting for a passage [illegible] and in the little cove at our feet were 500 Indian warriors in their slender canoes, watching [illegible] the [illegible] of these [illegible] whites [illegible]. Nothing remains here now to remind one of any of these events in history, and it requires an experienced eye to detect the indentations where once the foundations of store and trading houses stood. The most convincing witness is the smooth turf and fine grass of cultivation which time does not eradicate.

From this spot, up along the Columbia river bank for a mile, to the old Custom-house, is a beautiful shaded walk, leading through cool [illegible], and anon flashing upon you unexpected views of the river and the ocean. Just above the old Custom-house begins the military road, laid down on the maps as a route from Astoria to Salem. Congress appropriated $30,000, and somebody spent the money, and there remains to this day a barely perceptible trail winding off over the hills somewhere. Doubtless a good road can be built by natural passes through the Coast range into the Willamette valley. Indeed I have no doubt that the valleys of the several rivers heading in these mountains furnish passes sufficiently good for a railroad route, but the military road is not through one of them.

Taking advantage of the ebb tide, I made an excursion around the head of the point, and along the shore of Young's Bay, to get a view of Saddle mountain, Lewis and Clark's river, the Clatsop plains, etc. The plains I did not see except by faith, the distance being too great, but I was informed they consisted of long sand ridges, covered with fine grass, and very fertile under cultivation. Clatsop beach is a popular summer resort, which however I did not feel much desire to visit after the more delightful beaches of California. The river of Lewis and Clark runs through a flat low country, and seemed to me a very undesirable location for winter quarters in this moist climate. However, they probably wished to be near the sea to observe the tides, or for other purposes. I felt little doubt as I strolled along the shore of the Astorian peninsula that time would see a great and important city at this point. Nature has established her decree. Where the mighty Columbia debouches into the ocean, where there is room for the navies of the world, where there is material for shipping—lumber, iron, coal—a healthful climate, and magnificent scenes to delight the eye—there must be the great city of the Oregon of the future. Saddle mountain, from the west side of the peninsula, is a splendid sight. Not snow capped in summer, it is still very lofty, and of the most picturesque form, reminding one of those "castled crags of Drachenfels" which all tourists rapturize. "Saddle mountain" is an ugly misnomer, like so many popular names. If it had been called Castle mountain it might have answered to the idea contained in the name, which it certainly does not at present.

Scrambling over the stones, and listening to legends of mysterious wrecks upon the coast generations agone, the proof of which were found by early voyagers in the persons of light haired, freckle faced natives, in foreign coins, and various signs of wrecked cargoes, such as beeswax in fragments that occasionally wash up in storms even now, I came upon a pretty spot of bottom land and an Indian lodge. Outside were numberless dogs, and two pretty girls of ten and twelve years of age. Inside were three squaws, of various ages, braiding baskets and tending baby, with two Indians sitting on their haunches doing nothing, and salmon everywhere. On the fire, on the walls, overhead, dripping grease and smelling villainously, were salmon—nothing but salmon. My companion, who could talk jargon, held a conversation in which I took no interest, because I could not understand. I was informed it was concerning the fair complexion of the [illegible], which fairness the nominal papa declared to be all right. Such are the benefits of civilization to the savage.

Leaving Astoria and proceeding up the river, there is nothing of special interest, although the scenery is fine, bordering on the magnificent all the way to St. Helens, a little town just east of the coast range. We pass Cathlamet on the Washington side, also Oak Point, and the mouth of the Cowlitz, neither of them remarkable for anything in particular. Coffin Rock, on the Oregon side, is a rocky promontory sparsely covered with trees, where the Indians formerly deposited their dead in canoes. Wilkes relates in his journal how his men accidentally set fire to the underbrush at this spot and consumed a number of these sacred canoes, to the great horror of the Indians, who would have revenged the insult, had they not been convinced of its accidental occurrence.

St. Helens is a very small town in a very fine natural position. The river here is broad and majestic, with highlands opposite the town, and good level table land extending back of it some distance. Here are salt springs and iron mines in abundance, and the finest of timber, but they await the men and money to make them available. Just about at this point we begin to have a fine view of Mt. St. Helens, which was in eruption in 1839, throwing ashes all over the country to a depth of one or two inches. It looks pure and peaceful enough now to have renounced such [illegible] forever. Above the town of St. Helens the shores of the Columbia are low level and wooded up to the mouth of the Willamette. Perhaps that would not be strictly true of the south side, if we remember that there is a long island [illegible] extending the whole distance, behind which the red banks of the Columbia rise to lofty hills, densely covered with fir. At the mouth of the Willamette are a number of low islands covered with beautiful groves of cottonwood and oak, and the scene presented on a fine evening with the wide expanse of mingling rivers, the numerous islands, the [illegible] hills and lofty peaks [illegible] is equal [illegible] anywhere [illegible].

VANCOUVER.

It was with considerable interest that I regarded for the first time the town of Vancouver, the site of the Hudson's Bay Company's chief post and the residence of its chief officers in Oregon. I was unable to ascertain whether the broad and graceful [illegible] on which the town stands was thus [illegible] by the Company's labors, or whether kind nature had so disposed her [illegible] that this lovely [illegible] of sloping smoothness had been nestled in among impenetrable forests and [illegible] for the [illegible]. As a town site the situation is charming. It is high enough and [illegible] nearly level, rising gently [illegible] a mile back [illegible]. It is at present a very quiet and [illegible] [illegible] The United States [illegible] [illegible] served when Vancouver was first laid out, and having grown [illegible] Vancouver [illegible] great breadth and beautified [illegible].

THE CASCADES AND THEIR [illegible]

At Vancouver for a short distance the scenery does not vary much, and it is only when we approach the Cascade range that we begin to realize the majesty of the Columbia. In ascending the river, west of the range, Mt. Hood is right before us, and it is a deep disappointment to see it diminish in apparent height as we approach it. But other and more novel sights begin to engage our attention, and so the disappointment [illegible]. The Cascade Mountains lift their towering fronts in awful grandeur on either side. Fantastic forms of rock with names still more fantastic are pointed out to us by the intelligent and appreciative Captain Wolf, who [illegible] our little party the use of the [illegible]. "That single detached rock on the right is Rooster Rock," says the Captain.

"I should call it the [illegible]," says Miss A. "Don't you observe that it has the form of a woman with shawl thrown over her head?"

All [illegible] during which [illegible] this remarkable pillar of basalt. [illegible] the mountains [illegible] near Cape Horn, [illegible] and beyond which the Indian canoes could not pass [illegible]. It is very fine sailing up the Columbia [illegible] in the middle of [illegible] and there are high [illegible] perpendicular wall of [illegible]. The river here is narrow [illegible] the strong draft of the wind through this cleft in the mountains at certain seasons [illegible] of navigation. Nearly opposite Cape Horn is a perpendicular elevation of rock, down which falls several separate streams of water a distance of from 100 to 700 feet. Viewed from the steamer deck they look like mountain ribbons, and long before they reach the level of the river they are lashed into misty spray. The principal one of these falls is called the [illegible], by some one who [illegible] to [illegible] them to poetry.

Castle Rock is another wonderful [illegible] standing [illegible] in the heart of the Cascade Range is a pretty piece of bottom land on the north side of the river, and here is the little town called the Lower Cascades, fronted on the south by precipitous mountains 4,000 feet in height, between which and itself the rapid and mighty river just escaped from those rocky falls that for six miles torture it into a sheet of foam.

Leaving the steamer Cascade at this point, we were transferred to the cars in waiting and steamed rapidly along all the way in sight of the foaming rapids, to the Upper Cascades, another little town at the upper landing. This ride of six miles is a delightful one, affording such opportunities of wonderful sight seeing as occurs but seldom in a life time. There is not the wild force to these rapids that you see when the Niagara rushes to its fall, but the variety of play of the water is infinitely greater, and the adjuncts to the rapids far more magnificent. There is a curious error about Fitz Hugh Ludlow's description of these Cascades, which confuses the reader who has ever visited the spot. There is no particular fall of 20 feet anywhere between Portland and the Dalles. It leads one to mistrust that he mistook his notes on the falls of the Willamette for those on the Cascades of the Columbia. There is considerable incline to the bed of the river, giving great velocity to the water at this place, and rocky islands above, as well as concealed rocks beneath the surface, all of which cause an exciting spectacle of rushing, boiling, foaming, dashing impetuous water, which Ludlow has described very beautifully, but the fall is a mistake. "The difference of height between high and low water at the Cascades is 47 feet, yet low water reveals no perpendicular wall of basalt extending, with minor deviations from the right angle, entirely between shores, a breadth of about a mile." This paragraph answers very correctly, however, to a description of the Willamette Fall, at Oregon City.

Of the noticeable features of the Cascades, (the town,) I looked with some interest at the old forts or block-houses erected during the Indian war. The upper town was once taken by the Indians and several citizens massacred. The groves along the river, with the beautiful bay formed by the Columbia as it sets back from its impetuous rush through the narrow passes amongst the islands, make this a charming spot for a mountain hamlet. It ought never to be anything more, or the soul of Nature is profaned. There is a great deal of petrified wood about the Cascades, some of which I secured. It is a great fable, however, to call the sunken forest just above, a petrified forest, which it is not, but only a strip of sunken bottom land, so recent that the old gray stumps still stand out of water many feet in height.

On board the Oneonta, Capt. McNulty, we found ourselves more charmingly accommodated than before, having a clean and open after deck, from which to observe the scenery without the trouble of moving from our chairs. The first thing that strikes the eye is an immensely high and bold perpendicular cliff of red rock, pointed as a pyramid at the top, which looks as if freshly split off or parted from some other mass of rock, which other mass is nowhere visible. Here comes in the Indian tradition of a bridge that once existed across the Columbia at this place, and which subsequently fell in, blocking up the river below and forming the rapids. It looks probable enough to have suggested such an idea even to an Indian, though the savage must attach a legend of offended spirits to his more natural conclusion in order to account for it. The height and grandeur of the mountains above the Cascades is so great and overpowering that I feel no disposition to attempt anything like a description. It cannot be described—it can only be felt, and that newspaper correspondent who lately pronounced the scenery of the Columbia river as insignificant, takes rank in our estimation beneath contempt. The Hudson, which so long has been the pride of America, is but the younger brother of the majestic Columbia. Place a hundred Dunderbergs side by side, and you have some conception of these stupendous bluffs. Treble the height of the Palisades, and you can form an idea of those precipitous cliffs. Elevate the dwarfed evergreens of the Hudson Highlands into firs and pines like these, and then you may compare. I confess that I never enjoyed a journey more for the completeness of its impressions. There seemed nothing to desire—I only could gaze and dream, for even these wild Western waters are not without their historical and romantic interest. Down this strong rapid high walled river, fifty years ago floated the annual "brigade" of the Hudson's Bay Company, bringing the year's accumulation of peltries, and the annual express from the Red river settlements and Canada. Ten years earlier Lewis and Clark had descended this great river in the service of the Government, and a few years later a part of the Astor Expedition suffered all but death passing these rugged mountains in the winter. Only twenty years ago the yearly immigration to Oregon, arriving at the Dalles destitute and sick, late in the season, were dependent on the Hudson's Bay Company's boats to bring them down to the settlements. It was a terrible passage, and many both of boatmen and immigrants lost their lives in the fearful rapids. These were the incidents of pioneer life, now passed away, while we, tourists at leisure, dream and gaze from the deck of a first class steamer, with all our wants anticipated. Twenty years more will work marvels, but it is with feelings of satisfaction that we reflect it is not possible to man to intermeddle with the eternal majesty of these mountains. As God made them so they shall remain to be the wonder of all [illegible].

"Here," says our captain, "is Wind Mountain." The Indian name answers to our word [illegible], probably because the Indians found it so difficult to pass here when the wind was foul. On the opposite or Oregon side, just where the foot hills commence, is a fine fruit farm in a delightful situation, with Mt. Hood showing just back of it. About 11 miles above the Cascades is one of the finest [illegible] point in the river. While the steamer lies at a wood yard taking on [illegible] we have time to observe that the view is closed in on either side of us by wonderful promontories jutting past each other, and that the mountains seem to have attained their highest on either side of the river, thus enclosing us in a little sea girt round lofty cliffs of rugged rocks or forest crowned mountain ridges. Not far from here [illegible] river comes in cold from the snows of the mighty mountain, and the very best view of that [illegible]. So near does it seem that we can see the glistening of the snow where it [illegible] the sun. Nearly opposite the White Salmon enters the Columbia, and between the cleft heights you catch a passing glimpse of Mount Adams.

APPROACHING THE DALLES.

[illegible] having the scenery of the Cascades we have seen no fine [illegible] approach the Dalles. The high lands are [illegible] rolling, being arranged in long ridges, some parallel with the river, others running at right angles with it, but all very extensive, and but partially covered with timber. The [illegible] basaltic rock is [illegible] still protruding from the hills, walling in the river on both sides. [illegible] frequently it divides for a [illegible] space, leaving the prettiest natural slips for boats and a clean sandy beach on which to make a landing. But the houses and the boatmen are invisible, there being very few settlements to be discovered anywhere along the Columbia. Occasionally, however, some hardy settler has taken possession of the narrow strip of bottom land at the foot of the mountains, and has turned his little possessions into a farm. Undoubtedly there must be many eligible spots along the river, as there is certainly a good market on it.

JOHN PHOENIX.—Those who knew John Phoenix (Lieutenant Derby)—knew him as we did—will be glad to read this strong [illegible] which is so characteristic of him. [illegible] Daily related it to me some [illegible] and we cannot forbear to give it a place in [illegible]. All who knew Derby will [illegible] there was nothing about him [illegible] [illegible]

EXCITEMENT IN THE INDIAN WAR.—[illegible] following [illegible] Fort Connor [illegible] September [illegible]:

GEORGE N. SANDERS.—A number of rebel agents such as George N. Sanders and Beverly Tucker, who made so much noise in Canada for a short season, are still living at Montreal. It appears that on the night of the 20th July a sensation of considerable dimensions was occasioned among them by an alleged attempt to kidnap Sanders and bring him across the border to within the limits of the United States, and it is reported that men having this object in view were found secreted in Sanders' residence. Upon their discovery a lively struggle ensued between the masked visitors and some members of the family, but the attempt to secure the person of George was a failure. It is stated that the rebel agents and secessionists in Montreal keep themselves very quiet now a days, and receive but little attention from the people. The importance which attached to them in times past is quite played out.

DAVIS AND CLAY.—The Fortress Monroe correspondent of the Petersburg Index says that Jeff Davis and C. C. Clay accidentally met for the first time since their confinement a few evenings since, on the ramparts of Fortress Monroe. It has been customary for them to have their promenades at different hours, but this time, by some error, thus went out at the same time. Clay extended his hand, saying he presumed they would be allowed to shake hands if not to converse. There being no objections by the officers, they clasped hands with fervor, but no word was uttered.

CONTRADICTED.—A statement which recently appeared in a Raleigh (N. C.) paper to the effect "that the native element, including the aristocracy, is growing more defiant every day, and more openly threaten to hang Union men and negroes as soon as the troops are withdrawn," was calculated to do so much damage to the cause of emigration that the Governor of that State has been applied to to know if it is true. He replies, contradicting the statement and encouraging emigrants to go there with perfect confidence in future.

Contents of a boy's pocket emptied by the schoolmaster: Sixteen marbles, one top, an [illegible], two pieces of brick, one doughnut, a piece of [illegible], half dozen strings, one paint brush, two broken knives, a skate strap, three [illegible] kites, one ball, two primers, five hens' eggs, and a bird's nest.

GEN. HOWARD PROMOTED.—Brig. Gen. O. O. Howard, late Major General in the volunteer forces, has been brevetted Major General in the regular army, to date from the 10th of March, for gallant and meritorious services.

TWO CITIES.—The population of New York City by the census of 1865 is 1,00[illegible] being an increase of a little than 190,000 in five years. The population of Boston is now 192,[illegible] an increase of but 11,500 in five years.

"Now, children," asked a school inspector, "who loves all men?" A little girl not four years old, and evidently not posted on the rule, answered quickly, "All women."

The London Standard attributes the defeat of the Confederacy to England's neutrality. A few Northern men had a little hand in it.

"CONSTITUTION WATER,"

THE ONLY REMEDY FOR DISEASES OF THE

BLADDER, KIDNEYS,

Gravel, Dropsical Swellings,

GENITAL DEBILITY, ETC.

THE ASTONISHING SUCCESS WHICH HAS AT tended this invaluable medicine renders it the most valuable ever discovered. No language can convey an adequate idea of the immediate and almost miraculous change which it occasions in the debilitated and shattered system. In fact it stands unrivalled as a remedy for the permanent cure of the maladies above mentioned, and also—

DIABETES, IMPOTENCY,
LOSS OF MUSCULAR ENERGY,
PHYSICAL PROSTRATION,
INDIGESTION,
SEMINAL WEAKNESS,
GLEET, FLUOR ALBUS,

And in every disease any way connected with the disorder of the PROCREATIVE FUNCTIONS. Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness, should take the

CONSTITUTION WATER,

Whether broken down by excess, weak by nature, or impaired by sickness, the unstrung and relaxed organization is at once braced, revivified and built up. Well may this celebrated medicine be called the

MEDICAL WONDER.

The stooping, trembling victim of depression and debility becomes a new man; he stands erect, he moves with a firm step, his mind, which was previously sunk in gloom or an almost idiotic apathy, becomes bright and active; and he goes forth regenerated, conscious of new vigor. The medicine reaches the CONSTITUTION itself, and restores it to its normal condition.

IRRITATION OF THE NECK OF THE BLADDER,
INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS AND
CATARRH OF THE BLADDER,
STRANGUARY AND BURN-
ING, OR PAINFUL
URINATING,
CALCULUS, GRAVEL,
BRICK DUST DEPOSIT AND MUCOUS
OR MILKY DISCHARGES AFTER URINATING.

For these diseases it is truly a sovereign remedy, and too much cannot be said in its praise. A single dose has been known to relieve the most urgent symptoms. TRY IT in these cases, and you will ever give praise to

CONSTITUTION WATER.

Males or Females,

Are you troubled with that distressing pain in the small of the back, and through your hips? CONSTITUTION WATER will relieve you like magic.

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus, CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD, heals the irritated parts, gives strength to the digestive organs, brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction, even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it [illegible]
